

WHEN TO SEE AN ENT SPECIALIST FOR YOUR CHILD'S RECURRING EAR INFECTION

If your child has any of the following symptoms related to ear infections or beyond, you should talk to your pediatrician about a referral to an ENT Specialist.

Chronic ear infections got your child down? There is nothing worse than regular trips to the doctor because of a child who can't sleep; has difficulty eating; fever; drainage from the ear; and is just plain grumpy because of pain in their ear. In fact, many ear, nose and throat conditions can cause chronic issues.

Every Pediatrician has a different standard of when it's time to see an ENT specialist so let the Ear, Nose, and Throat (ENT) team at Iowa City ASC provide you some guidance.

Patient - Molly

“The Iowa City Ambulatory Surgical Center is a great place to have surgery. I have actually referred a lot of my friends to have their surgeries here, if they can. It is very convenient for your family to come here. Plus I work here, which it's great here. I love working here and appreciated the care I received.”
